"Husbands" premiere

It's been a very busy summer and fall!

THE Hollywood REPORTER

After a successful 20 week run of 60 episodes, my comedy series, "The Ladies & The Gents" wrapped up with a panel at Social Media Week LA and an appearance at the 1st Annual Geekie Awards in August. For more about the Geekie Awards, check out the article in The Hollywood Reporter: hollywoodreporter.com/news/stan-lee-nathan-fillion-honored-608708.

I was honored to judge the One Shot Category at the Geekie Awards gala event in LA, where my series "Shelf Life" & "Gold: Night of the Zombie King" were both nominated, with a win for Night of the Zombie King in the Best Geek Culture Category.

In "ElfQuest" news, it was a thrill to represent the franchise at Comic-Con in San Diego in July for the 35th Anniversary celebration of the iconic series. Since taking over the Film/TV rights, I've been overwhelmed by the support of the "ElfQuest" community, and I look forward to sharing some exciting news with you soon!

Stephanie Thorpe as Winnowill from "ElfQuest" in the latest edition of Cupcake Quarterly Magazine

I just spoke on 3 panels at Stan Lee's Comikaze, where I got to share my love of comedy & creating original content in "How to Get 150 Web Celebs in a Bathroom: Creating Collaborative Comedy for the Web"; "The Geekie Awards: An Awards Show By Geeks for Geeks" with event creator Kristen Nedopak; and "Web Series Creation 101: How Do You Build A Guild?" with Katrina Hill & Sean Becker. I also stopped by GeekGirlCon in Seattle, to host a meetup for the League of Extraordinary Ladies, of which I'm a founding member, and where I represented the ElfQuest Brand & WeLoveFine Tees. I continue to write a monthly column for Ms. In The Biz Magazine (msinthebiz.com), with a foodie review of the Mac 'n' Cheese Martini for Boing Boing. The ultimate in comfort food!
